"Students choose to continue their education through a Master of Business Administration for three main reasons..." — Jennifer Whitten, Director of Graduate Career Services for the W. P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University.

Common Career Outcomes & Median Salaries

Upon graduation, MBA recipients pursue a variety of career paths, including:

- Project and Program Management
  - Median Salary: $81,330

- Supply Chain Management
  - Median Salary: $81,760

- Consulting
  - Median Salary: $127,560

- Advertising, Promotions, and Marketing Management
  - Median Salary: $127,560

- Entrepreneurship
  - Median Salary: $127,560

Median salaries provided by Payscale and US Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Questions to Help Decide if an MBA is Right for You

NO. 1: DO YOU ASPIRE TO BE A LEADER?

There are more than 2.4 million top executives in the U.S. Chief Executive Officers earned a median annual wage of $180,540 in 2016.

NO. 2: DO YOU WANT TO GROW YOUR SKILLS?

MBAs are worthwhile for students who want to hone their expertise in their respective fields.

NO. 3: DO YOU WANT HANDS-ON EXPERIENCE?

MBA programs often facilitate team-based learning, guest speakers, group projects and interactive technology for a comprehensive learning experience.

NO. 4: DO YOU WANT TO GROW YOUR PROFESSIONAL NETWORK?

MBAs are worthwhile for students who want to make professional connections that will benefit them throughout their careers.

NO. 5: DO YOU WANT A SALARY INCREASE?

Earning an MBA can improve your employee value, which could lead to a pay increase and higher earning potential when applying to new jobs.

Are You Interested?

The online Master of Business Administration (MBA) from the W. P. Carey School of Business at Arizona State University converges business learning into a convenient, flexible online format, allowing you to start working toward your goals as soon as possible.